Capt. Trenchard said, when called on to express his views on the subject:

"This is not the time for words. It is the time for action. I cannot, of course, say that we will win, but we propose, win or lose, to give the colleges such an exhibition of pluck and determination as is seldom seen anywhere."

In reply to the question:

"Do you think Princeton can defeat Yale?" he said:

"I think we have a show of winning, but we are badly crippled. I would feel easier if Cochran were in better shape. At all events, we will know to-morrow night what we can do."

Trainer Jack MacMasters said:

"We are not very strong behind the line. If we had a little more strength at full-back and another good half, I would not be afraid of the outcome of the Yale game. The line is doing its work and is all right. It can do its part if the backs can do theirs."

Mrs. Dressler's Lawyer Argues fo

a Share of Receipts. The arguments in the injunction pro ceedings brought by Andrew Freedman, receiver of the Manhattan Athletic Club, restraining Anna Dressler from re-moving the grand stands and club-house to-morrow from Manhattan Field, were heard by Justice Patterson, in the Supreme Court this afternoon Lawyer Crisp held that the specifications when Mrs. Dressler bought the stands provided that they were not to be removed until after Dec. 1, Mr. Freedman having anticipated a change in the usual date of the Yale-Princeton game.

Mrs. Dressler's lawyer admitted in the proceedings that Mrs. Dressler was after her part of the proceeds from the stands. When Lawyer Crisp argued that if the injunction were vacated the great game would have to be called off, Justice Patterson replied:

"Well, as the game is now played it would be a good thing to put a stop to it.

"But Supt. Byrnes has promised to look out for all slugging, and if any is indulged in, to stop the game." replied Mr. Crisp.
The contract which plainly states that the contract which plainty states that the property shall remain in the hands of the receiver up to and including Dec. I, was put in evidence.

When Cornelius T. Griffith was about to be sentenced by Recorder Smyth tod day, on a plea of forgery in the second degree, Everall Bros., of 256 Fifth avenue, presented affidavits showing that Griffiths had stolen over $53,000 from the firm during ten years he was collector and bookkeeper.
Griffith was engaged extensively as a promotor on funds he admitted to have stolen from his employers. He presented an affidavit declaring his total stealings did not reach that sum, and that he had given up property valued at $50,000, with an understanding he should have the balance when the account was squared.

Lawyer Daily declared that Griffith stole only about $20,000, and had given up more than enough to cover it. Letters commendatory of the prisoner, signed by Hobart A. Ward and Mayor Brown, of Paterson, were presented. On examination of the indictment on which a plea of golity was accepted a fatal variance was discovered. The forged note was dated in 1835, while Col. Fellows's papers said the crime was committed in 1834.

Recorder Smyth ordered the prisoner to be committed, the plea withdrawn and the facts presented to the January Grand Jury.
